OFFICE, 25 & 27 Fourteenth St TUESDAY, MARCH 3, 1874.

RICHMOND, the capital of Virginia, had RICHMOND, the capital of Virginis, had a population in 1870 of 51,000. A new census has just been completed there, which shows the present population to be 60,705, an increase of over nineteen per cent in less than four years. This is regarded as a very large increase, and is said to indicate a similar growth among extent of our post routes was less than said to indicate a similar growth among the other leading Southern cities. They all seem to have recovered from the depression following the war, and their prosperity is quite gratifying.

HERE is probably the correct view of the immoral tendency of the Mardi Gras demonstration at Memphia. It is from the Nashville Christian Adoccate: "We have not language to express our sense of the outrage on all decency perpetrated last week in Nashville. The Mardi Gras demonstrations were appalling in their obscenity and licentiousness. Lewd fetlows of the baser sort paraded the streets in the evening with loose women almost in a state of nudity. Doggeries were visited by them-dances of the most obscene character were performed, and the miserable wretches of both sexes were found at late hours of the night lying about the streets, overcome by their drunken de-1874—this in the metropolis of Tennes

In these times of peculation and default ing in office it is somewhat refreshing to meet with a public officer whose account pan out all right at the end of his term It will be gratifying to the many friends of General KELLY, the late Collector of Internal Revenue for this Congressions District, to learn that during his late visit to Washington be effected a full and fina settlement of his accounts with the Treasury Department. We understand that his collections during the time he held office were between two and three millions of dollars, all of which was promptly and faithfully paid into the United States Treasury as fast as collected. Upon settlement with the Depart ment, his accounts and those of the Gov ernment agreed to a cent. The General was of course much gratified at this result, and he desires to return his thanks to his friends who so kindly volunteered to become bondsmen to the Government for the faithful discharge of his duties and to congratulate them upon the fact that they are now released from all responsibility on his account.

American Relirond Dividends. We give below in a tabular form statement concerning the dividends paid by-American railroads, as reported in 'Poor's Manual," the year being generally the one which expired before May last. The whole mileage covered in Poor's tale is 57,823, which is about seven-eighths of the average mileage worked in 1872, but probably includes every railroad that paid a dividend:

THE WONDERS OF A CENTURY.

Will there be Another Hundred Years Like the One Just Closed.

[From the Baltimore American ] One hundred and ten years ago there was not a single white man in what is now Kentucky, Ohio, Indiana or Illinois. Then, what is now the most flourishing part of the United States, was as little known as the country in the heart of Africa. It was not till 1976 that Boone left his home in North Carolina to become the first settler in Kentucky. And the first pioneers of Ohio did not settle till twenty years later still. A hundred years ago Canada belonged to France, and Washington was a modest Virginia Colonel, and the United States the most loyal part of the British Empire, and scarcely a speck on the political horizon indicated the struggle that in a score of years was to lay the foundation of the greatest Republic of the world.

A hundred years ago there were but four small newspapers in America; steam engines had not been imagined, and locomotives and steamboats, and railroads, known as the country in the heart of Af-

A hundred years ago the spinning wheel was in almost every family, and clothing was spun and woven, and made up in the household; and the printing press was a cumbrous machine worked. ress was a cumbrous machin extent of our post routes was less than nineteen hundred miles. Cheap postage was unheard of, and find any one suggested the transmission of messages with lighting speed he would have been thought utterly insane. The microscope on the one hand, and the telescope on the other work in the inference of the contract of other, were in their infancy as instru-ments of science; and geology and chemistry were almost unknown. In word, it is true that to the century pass-ed have been allotted more improvements in their bearing on the comfort and hap-piness of mankind, than to, may other piness of mankind, than to any other which has elapsed since the creation of

What a pity that a young man, the hope of his country, he darling of his parents, should be snatched from all prospects and enjoyments of ile by the consequences of deviating from the path of nature and indiging in a certain secret labit. Such persons must, before contemplating Federal States of the secretary requisites to promote countries most necessary requisites to promote connublal happiness. Indeed, without these the journey through life becomes a weary pligrinage; the prospect hourly darkens to the view; the mind becomes shadowed with despair and filled with a melancholy reflection that the happiness of another becomes highed with our own.
